THUS SPOKE THE HOOPOE

Paintings by

HAMDI ATTIA

'The exhibition will continue through | 13 January 2019 '

AL MASAR GALLERY is pleased to announce the long awaited Exhibition by the renowned and established Artist HAMDI ATTIA, Titled : THUS SPOKE THE HOOPOE, featuring the Artist's latest paintings inspired by the major role the Hoopoe bird played in history and until today...

Thus Spoke the Hoopoe

In 2014, Cyclone Hudhud devastated large areas throughout eastern India and Nepal, and tore through hoopoe nests on India's eastern coast.

Birdwatchers around the world grew anxious about the bird's fate in a hurricane that happened to be named after its name in Arabic.

They ended up surviving these massive challenges of modern times, just like it is said that they did in the biblical time, during which they traveled on many missions without food or water, spreading the words of Solomon to the world and gathering gossip and intelligence for him. The Persian poet Attar of Nishapur named hoopoes "the wisest birds in the world" in his epic "The Conference of the Birds" - highlighting how the hoopoe is the emissary of kings and the king of wonders and expeditions. The bird also appears in the Quran, where he is depicted as a trustworthy, almost magical reporter of news, which he catches with a skilled eye.

"Thus Spoke the Hoopoe" is a body of painting that aims to explore the formula of this continuous myth of magical, insightful, and yet critical reporting by a timeless legendary bird. Drawing on but departing from the aesthetics of illustration, this body of work creates a distance between visual and textual elements to suggest that which is outside of the frame of the work
